

FOOD

THE MAIN COURSE TO DIGESTIVE HEALTH

2022 Topic Lineup:

Irritable Bowel Syndrome
Inflammatory Bowel Disease
Eosinophilic Esophagitis
Sucrose-Isomaltase deficiency
Food allergies vs. intolerances
Cannabis use & the GI tract
Circadian rhythm/sleep in GI disorders
Becoming a GI dietitian leader
Disordered eating and ARFID in the GI realm

A specialized program offered by expert faculty and dietitians from University of Michigan.

This course provides knowledge and training for dietitians with an interest in caring for gastrointestinal diseases and disorders.

Amazing networking opportunities with GI-specific sponsors, experts in the GI nutrition field, and many RD colleagues!

2022: We are back in person!
+ Offering a virtual option

Virtual option: recorded talks available to watch on demand

What past attendees are saying:

"This is by far the best conference I have been to as a dietitian in my 9 years in outpatient private practice. For 2 main reasons, it is focused on educating dietitians and provides practical advice/current research that I can apply in my everyday work."

"I really enjoy the set up of the topics. It is so helpful to have an MD present on the condition, followed by RD sharing specific nutrition interventions. Great conference!"

For more information, please visit our website and join our Facebook group:

www.foodthemaincourse.com

SCAN ME